

1. The first part of the document is a letter from the President of the United States to the Congress, dated January 3, 1862. It is a message of condolence to the people of the State of California, who have recently suffered from a severe earthquake. The President expresses his sympathy for the victims and offers his prayers for their recovery. He also mentions that the President has received a report from the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. G. K. Warren, that the earthquake has caused a great deal of damage to the public buildings in San Francisco. The President expresses his regret that he cannot do more to help the people of California at this time, but he assures them that the Government will do everything in its power to assist them.

2. The second part of the document is a report from the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. G. K. Warren, dated January 10, 1862. It is a report on the damage caused by the earthquake in San Francisco. Mr. Warren states that the earthquake was very severe and caused a great deal of damage to the public buildings. He mentions that the damage to the Custom House was particularly severe, and that the building was almost completely destroyed. He also mentions that the damage to the other public buildings was less severe, but still considerable. Mr. Warren concludes his report by stating that he has no doubt that the earthquake was a very severe one, and that it has caused a great deal of damage to the public buildings in San Francisco.
